UNIVERSITY PRESENTATION	The University of Macerata is a small university in the central part of Italy. It is among the oldest universities in Europe (it was founded in 1290), and its activities are oriented towards human and social sciences. Developing the internationalization and opening itself to the world are among the main strategic objectives of the University of Macerata, through the increase and the strengthening of the international networks, from the perspective of social cohesion at an international level. Fundamental is the role of internationalisation, which constitutes the main competitive factor for universities in general, and for the University of Macerata in particular, and has a significant impact on multiple aspects ranging from strategic positioning, student and lecturer attractiveness, reputation and visibility to research and teaching quality. Internationalisation processes are a significant innovation factor for both teaching and research as they encourage comparison with the highest global standards and contribute to the spread of a culture of continuous improvement. This policy is integrated into the University's Strategic Plan 2019-2022 and its revision document, which also emphasises increased mobility, network development, etc. As reported in the Policy Statement, the internationalization represents a fundamental component of the strategic vision of the University, which aims to make the international dimension as an integral part of its own teaching and research activities. Improving the quality of teaching and researching, through the active and interactive fusion of different academic traditions, represents the biggest expectation of the University. The following objectives are equally strategic: the quality control and the evaluation of participation, the level of internationalization among administrative staff, teachers and students; the measures to secure the full acknowledgment of the study abroad period; the development of transnational projects; the use of foreign languages in teaching and research; the strategies for the implementation of the Bologna

	Process and the Erasmus Policy Statement inside the institution. Students are offered a broad range of courses, including undergraduate and postgraduate degree programmes, Master's (some of which are delivered in English) and Ph.D. programmes, specialisation schools and summer schools. They can attend classes in cultural heritage, economics, philosophy, law, arts and humanities, languages, language mediation, communication, education, political science and tourism. The Giacomo Leopardi School of Advanced Studies offers excellent multidisciplinary teaching programmes for young and talented students. Thanks to the local Confucius Institute, the University of Macerata plays a leading role in promoting Chinese language and culture.
